Hancock schools to organize student activity accounts

By BRENT MACEY

The Hancock County School Board Saturday established a committee responsible for developing a policy manual which will outline how activity funds for each school in the district will be monitored.

The committee will be composed of Hancock North-Central Principal Donald Hillman, C.B. Murphy Principal Phillip Terrell, Gulfview Elementary School Principal William Haddock, and Superintendent Terrell Randolph.

The action was suggested by Chuck Benvenuti, a certified public accountant, who recently compiled figures of activity funds from each of four schools in the Hancock County School District.

Benvenuti noted the activity fund records at each "left a little to be desired."

Annual chamber banquet slated, board named

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce has scheduled its annual banquet Friday, Dec. 10, at the Diamondhead Country Club.

Social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. with dinner to be served at 7:30 p.m. John M. Lounge, NASA astronaut, will be guest speaker.

He was selected as an astronaut candidate by NASA in May, 1980 and in 1981 completed a one-year training and evaluation period making him eligible for assignment as a mission specialist on future space shuttle flight crews.

The Keeler Chorus, a chorus from Keeler Air Force Base, will perform. Tickets are $18 per person and advance reservations are required. Those interested may contact the chamber office at 467-9048.

DIRECTORS NAMED

Louis J. Breaux, chamber president, reports ballots for 1983 chamber directors have been counted.

Serving three-year terms will be Ellis Cuevas, The Sea Coast Echo; Dick Koebab, Hancock Insurance Agency; John Scaffide, Favre, Genin and Scaffide; Ed Ling, National Space Technology Laboratory; and John Mason, Mason's Exxon.

Serving one-year terms will be Mary M. Perkins, Hancock General Hospital; and Dr. Thomas Murphy, DDS.

These seven directors join Sherilyn Breland, Gulf National Bank; Maurice Colly, Maurice Colly Real Estate; David Treutel, Peoples Federal Savings and Loan; Pat Harvill, Riemann Funeral Homes; Joseph Monti, Monti Electric; Pat Murphy Jr., Stevenson Electric; Dick Thomas, Moore and Powell, CPA; Bill Whitfield, Sam Whitfield Timber Co.; and Louis J. Breaux, Breaux's Services, on the chamber's board.

"We will meet Tuesday to elect officers for 1983," said Breaux.

He said he had problems matching receipts with expenditures and blamed the problem on a weakness in the accounting procedures.

Receipts of the activity fund compiled for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1982 totaled $107,048 at Hancock North Central Junior and Senior High School.

The total at that school, prompted Board Member Woodrow Ladner to exclaim, "That's big business."

Benvenuti replied, "Definitely, it is big business."

In the past, school principals at each of the four schools have had the authority to monitor activity funds at their respective school.

However, as of the fiscal year 1983-84, the state legislature has requested the funds be coordinated through the school district's central business office.

Benvenuti noted immediate action to organize the activity funds through the central office "could save you (the board) a lot of headaches in the future."

He suggested the Hancock North Central activity fund transactions be recorded on a computer.

"You already have the computers and the software available there," he noted.

To help the committee establish a policy manual and organize accounting procedures at each school, Benvenuti was hired at a cost of $35 an hour.

The accountant presented data on all school activity funds during the meeting.

Firemen Toy Fund seeks assistance

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Hancock County Doll and Toy Fund is seeking assistance, according to Andrew Lizana, chief of the Bay St. Louis Fire Department.

Lizana said, "The Doll and Toy Fund is funded by the Hancock County United Way, but as always, we have more requests than funds available to purchase the necessary toys to help all deserving children of the community have a Merry Christmas."

"There are several businessmen in the area who have contributed over the years and we are hoping they will again consider this worthy cause," Lizana added.

On Christmas Eve last year the Doll and Toy Fund delivered presents to more than 300 children selected through the Welfare Department.

Lizana stated, "We can also make use of old toys and persons wishing to donate those their children have outgrown can call me at 467-4736 or drop them off at the Bay St. Louis Fire Station."

"We hope to have a nice toy for every boy and girl," Lizana stated.

His figures show Hancock North Central Junior and Senior High School with the largest activity fund.

Although receipts totaled $107,048 last year, expenditures totaled $99,688.

A $7,527 balance remaining in the account from the previous year, coupled with $7,350 accumulated during the 1981-82 year left a balance of $14,877 to begin the 1982-83 school year.

"Other district school's activity funds show:

—Gulfview Elementary School—a $2,242 balance beginning the 1981-82 year; $13,815 in revenues and $12,439 in expenditures during the year; final balance of $3,618.

—Hancock North Central Elementary—$908 balance, $7,867 in revenues, $7,620 in expenditures; balance $1,155.

—C.B. Murphy Elementary School—$470 balance, $3,668 in revenues, $3,223 in expenditures; balance of $915.

More indigent seeking help

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Hancock County Emergency Relief Fund so far this year has assisted about 65 more people than last year.

Ena Piazza, fund director, reports some 335 people received emergency financial assistance last year, but this year already about 400 have been aided by the agency.

The relief fund is partially supported by the Hancock County United Way. She feels poor economic conditions have contributed to the unusually high number of people seeking assistance.

Most applicants are indigent transients referred by the Hancock Sheriff's Department, but aid is also provided on a one-time basis to persons awaiting approval of food stamp applications and whose medical aid does not purchase all necessary medicine, Piazza explained.

The emergency fund has operated for about 15 years, she added.

BPC warns new Bay businesses

Wastewater discharges into city sewers banned

By BRENT MACEY

New businesses locating in Market Town Shopping Center being constructed at the intersection of US-90 and Dunbar Avenue, will not be allowed to discharge any wastewater into the Bay St. Louis sewerage system.

The Mississippi Bureau of Pollution Control sent a letter to the developers of Market Town, prohibiting all wastewater discharges.

The letter was mailed Thursday of this week. Friday, W.F. Wendall Company officials of Metairie La., developers of Market Town, could not be reached for comment to determine if they had received the letter.

Caleb Dana, a pollution technologist with the bureau, noted the Wendall company is the first company to be notified.

He said the commission will be notifying other owners of businesses which are in the process of being constructed or are being planned for construction in the near future.

The businesses which Dana said are earmarked to be sent letters include, owners of Bay Cove Marina Subdivision; the owner of a Domino's Pizza slated for construction on Hwy. 90 and Carroll Avenue; and owners of an office and clinic being constructed near the intersection of Seminary Drive and US-90.

The letter was sent to W.F. Wendall Company the same day that Eckerd Drug relocated in the new shopping center.

Seven other businesses are scheduled to open in the shopping center Dec. 1, while Jitney Jungle is scheduled to move to the shopping center Jan. 1.

Dana noted the new business can locate in the shopping center, "but they can't flush their toilets," he said.

"They should not discharge any wastewater into the system," he added.

John Harper, director of enforcement with the BPC, said both the city and the businesses could be fined a maximum of $25,000 a day if the BPC order is violated.

Tony Schexnayder, manager of Eckerd Drug in Market Town, said Friday he had not been notified of any possible problem associated with discharging waste into the Bay St. Louis sewerage system.

We're not going to be adding anything to the system. We are just relocating," he said.

Dana noted inspectors from the BPC have visited Bay St. Louis recently to inspect new connections as well as checking into new developments being constructed or being planned.

He expects department officials will return to the city at a future date to inspect the lines at the shopping center.

"They shouldn't have any problem determining whether or not the lines are being used," he said.

He stated the commission is focusing only on business for the time being.

Landowner claims powerline stories misleading public

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Hancock County landowners Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Brooke of Baton Rouge reported via telephone Saturday that news stories aired by a Gulf Coast Television Station were misleading in reference to Hinds County Court action Thursday.

Mr. Brooke said, "If you heard the story, it sounded as if the South Mississippi Residents for Orderly Development, a group that opposed the construction of a 500,000 volt line across Jackson, Harrison, Hancock and Pearl River Counties, were denied a motion to delay an order allowing Mississippi Power Co. to build the high-voltage line."

"The proceedings in Hinds County, were in reality intended to delay the eminent domain proceedings filed against myself, wife and son by Mississippi Power Company until the stay filed before Hinds County Chancellor Paul Alexander by the South Mississippi Residents for Orderly Development could be heard," Brooke stated.

The news story was not viewed by Brooke, but he heard about it, and had someone from the television station read it to him. An Associated Press Story was also carried by daily publications indicating that the South Mississippi Residents for Orderly Development's motion for a delay had been denied by Judge Alexander.

Mississippi Power Co. has filed two eminent domain proceedings against Clyde and Ruth Brooke, and Judd Brooke, respectively for properties they own which is included in the Public Service Commission's permission to construct the powerline on June 20.

Brooke said he believes the reason proceedings were filed against them is because he and his family are probably the largest private landowners along the line.

"What really happened in Hinds County Thursday was that we had requested a delay in the eminent domain preliminary proceedings against us set for Nov. 23 with a trial date set for Dec. 14 in Hancock County," Brooke emphasized.

Brooke indicated the stay of the Public Service Commission giving Mississippi Power authority to construct the line was sought by the South Mississippi Residents for Orderly Development, because the commission has no jurisdiction since it is going to sell the power interstate and not intrastate.

The Brooke's are also members of the group opposing the line's construction. When asked if there were other motions in reference to the power line filed in the Hinds County Court in reference to the power line construction, Brooke, said, "no."

Mrs. Brooke stated, "The stories have been misleading people who have been holding off selling their land. Now they think it is all over. We have lost battles before, but we still haven't lost the war."

Brooke reported his attorney was scheduled to file a suit on Friday, Nov. 19 for the removal of the eminent domain proceedings against him, his wife, and son to remove the case from Hancock County Courts to Federal Court.

Attorneys for Mississippi Power contend the Public Service Commission did have the authority needed to make its ruling and said only the sale of the electricity carried by the line, and not the line itself, was regulated by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

The line, which will carry 500,000 volts, will extend from Mississippi Power Company's Plant Daniel generating station across the four South Mississippi Counties into Louisiana.

Brooke's attorney Thomas Tyler and Judge Alexander could not be reached for comment to confirm or deny the Brooke's statements late Saturday.

Waveland woman named district administrator

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A Waveland woman is the first administrator of the recently formed Waveland Wastewater Management District.

Ethel Schott, former certified operator and laboratory technician of Waveland's sewage treatment plant, was named administrator at a Thursday night meeting of the District Board of Directors.

The board consists of Mayors Larry Bennett of Bay St. Louis and John Longo of Waveland, who is also chairman; and A.A. (Dolph) Kellar, Hancock County Board of Supervisors president.

Longo Thursday said Schott will be a full-time employee paid $85 monthly effective immediately.

He noted Schott was previously working part time at $700-per-month.

Longo reported the board also appointed Moore and Powell Certified Public Accountants of Bay St. Louis to establish and maintain cost accounting records for the district.

Additionally, in response to a request by the State Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Pollution Control, the board directed its attorney, Lucien Gex, to compose and mail a letter to the BPC informing the agency that an administrator has been appointed and a management scheme has been initiated for the district.

Longo and Gex explained Waveland turned over its wastewater system to the district several weeks ago, but at that time a copy of a formal agreement was not sent to the bureau.

Catch 22 situation explained regarding flood insurance rules

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Hancock County and all Mississippi Gulf Coast governments will be required to adopt new codes for all construction in flood-prone areas so the availability of Federal Flood Insurance may continue.

Don Hansford, Natural and Technological Hazards Branch community planner of the Federal Emergency Management Agency's Atlanta, Ga. office informed a group of some 20 people consisting of public officials, businessmen and citizens of that fact at a Thursday morning hearing at the Hancock Courthouse, in Bay St. Louis.

His report was in response to several questions by individuals inquiring why an uninsured home should be required to meet the insurance requirements.

The FEMA official said the government requirements create a "Catch 22 situation" for the homeowner.

Hearings explaining new flood insurance requirements were conducted last week by Hansford and John S. Yeend, an ocean engineer of Gee and Jensen Consulting Engineers, Inc. of West Palm Beach, Fla., the firm which formulated Federal Flood Insurance Studies for the coast.

Hansford stated, "If the county doesn't adopt an ordinance, then the residents can't get flood insurance."

The apparent reason for the blanket requirement is to minimize the number of noncomplying structures in the Flood Plain which would conceivably be destroyed in a hurricane. The resulting water-borne debris would batter or destroy insured structures.

Hansford also explained areas up to 300-square-feet may be enclosed beneath elevated structures below the minimum required floor height, but not utilized as living space.

He said laundry, recreation and restrooms are considered living space.

Donn Murray, county building inspector, noted that no electrical outlets or wiring are allowed below the minimum elevation either.

Bert Courrage, Hancock District One supervisor, asked if elevation variances for commercial structures will still be allowed.

Hansford said probably the variances would continue.

Murray also asked what would happen if someone enclosed additional space below a building after initial construction which would violate codes.

The FEMA official replied, "His flood insurance is null and void if the home is damaged or destroyed."

Hansford also reported structure fire, wind or theft insurance policy protection would also be void if a code violation is found by inspectors.

Murray said the county maintains a record of code violations which are provided to insurance companies when a claim is filed.

John Scaffide Jr., County Planning Commission attorney, said a "willful" code violation is a misdemeanor and carries a $100-per-day fine for each day a building owner is not in compliance.

"We've got two or three people in violation of the ordinance that won't be in violation with the new maps," he also stated.

James Rester, planning commission president, noted Hancock's only code requirement calls for a minimum floor elevation of 13.1 feet above sea level.

Murray added the county code presently allows a maximum 114-square-foot enclosure below the elevation requirement.

Hansford said new building floors elevated at least four feet above the minimum height requirement would receive the lowest rate.

Structure floors raised any higher probably would not receive a lower rate, he added.

Yeend reported mobile homes will not be allowed in velocity zones—areas designated in the new study which are subject to hurricane wave action where the minimum elevation will be higher.

He said existing trailers can stay in those areas, but new ones will not be allowed.

Hansford noted if hurricane does not destroy mobile home park pads and sewerage in a velocity zone, the development will be allowed to return.

He said the new building codes will probably be imposed in about one year.

In four-six weeks a public notice will be published in The Sea Coast Echo stating the public will have a 90-day appeal period to contest the studies.

The public may view the flood insurance maps at the Bay St. Louis, Pass Christian and Waveland City Halls and the Hancock Chancery Clerk's office at the Courthouse.

Each city possesses maps for only that municipality and the clerk's office has maps for unincorporated areas of the county.

County Agent's Notes

by John Smith

LIMIT GRAZE

The condition of winter pasture crops is greatly improved in areas that have had some moisture and many fields are being grazed lightly or will be ready to graze very soon.

It is tempting to turn brood cows on grass full-time and not be concerned with limited grazing.

However, to justify expensive winter pasture for brood cows, they should be grazed only a limited period of time each day according to John W. Smith, county agent.

A brood cow's energy and protein needs are easily provided by the high quality forage from winter pastures. Cost is the main consideration when wintering a cow on winter grazing.

Well fertilized winter pastures contain 20 percent or more protein and up to 70 percent total digestible nutrients (energy). Extension Animal Scientists report that cows grazing full-time will get nearly twice their protein needs and 60 to 80 percent more energy than is necessary.

It will take from 1.0 to 1.25 acres to provide ample forage for grazing a mature cow full-time. Limited grazing provides a management tool to get the most efficiency from a winter grazing program at the least cost per cow unit.

Research and cattlemen experience shows that a cow with a young calf can be satisfactorily wintered on one filling of 2-4 hour grazing a day along with a partial feeding of fair quality hay.

Trampling and contamination are greatly reduced when cattle are grazed only long enough to get a fill. Animal Scientists recommended no additional protein supplementation for cows receiving a good fill from well fertilized winter pasture.

In fact, the danger of nitrate poisoning may be increased where supplements containing high percentages of urea as a protein source are fed on highly nitrated forage crops.

When grazing gets short, cattlemen often graze every other day where a good quality hay is available for feeding on no-grazing days. The advisability of alternate day grazing will have to be determined by the condition of the cattle. To assure that calves grow off properly and that cows rebreed on time, a good level of nutrition must be maintained.

Grazing management is important to assure the forage will be available when needed. Start grazing when grass has six to eight inches of growth. Calves should be given full-time access to winter grazing through use of creep ages or holes in the fence.

Dry cows will often gain weight on this program so they must be separated from wet cows. Dry cows should be the last animals grazed with cows and calves being the first.

Where a year-round calving program is used, it is very hard to manage this type of grazing program. Animal Scientists recommended cows and heifers that are close to calving be held off grazing until they calve and are straightened out.

Good quality hay or silage along with an energy and protein supplement are suggested for feeding prior to calving. After calving, when the calf can consume the milk produced, go to winter grazing.

Plan the grazing management of winter pasture crops so the greatest benefit to the beef program will be achieved at the lowest cost per cow unit.

Administrators plan annual awards event

The Mississippi Coast Association of Federal Administrators will hold its annual awards dinner and fourth quarterly meeting Tuesday at the Broadwater Beach Hotel in Biloxi.

Mississippi Lt. Gov. Brad Dye will deliver the keynote address at the dinner, which begins at 7 p.m., according to Jerry Hlass, MCAFA president and manager of the National Space Technology Laboratories.

Dye was sworn in as the 35th lieutenant governor in January 1980. He has also served as executive director of the Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Board and from 1972 to 1978 as the state treasurer.

A highlight of the MCAFA meeting will be the announcement of the Outstanding Federal Employee of the Year. Members will also elect officers for the 1983 term during the business meeting. In addition, the Long Beach High School choir will perform for the MCAFA members and their guests.

MCAFA is comprised of the heads of all federal agencies located on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Bay family sets out to Tennessee via horseback

By BRENT MACEY

A Bay St. Louis family started out on horse and mule up Hwy. 603 Thursday after deciding about one month ago to give up a conventional lifestyle in favor of a more pioneer existence.

They sold their house, car and almost everything they owned in preparation for the trip.

"What we didn't sell we gave away," 40-year-old Sonny Bailes said with a smile.

Bailes noted the thought of making the trip occurred to him about one month ago.

"I was out of work and couldn't find a job. I felt if we didn't do it now then we'd never get another chance."

"It's something I had thought of doing for a long time," he said.

"I think everybody has something they think they'd like to do but it just gets put off and you never do it."

Both Bailes and his wife became very interested in horses and horseback riding about four years ago, he said.

Since that time the two have taken several two-week trail rides with riding groups; one of which began in Gulfport and ended in Baton Rouge.

Although Bailes said both he and his wife enjoyed the trips, he noted the riders maintained regular traveling hours each day regardless of weather conditions.

"Don't get me wrong. We enjoyed the trips but we thought we'd like to go at our own pace and take our time."

Exactly where the family will go in Tennessee has not been decided as well as how long the family will continue traveling.

Bailes expects he'll settle down in some state if he finds a job. But he thinks he will probably return to Bay St. Louis some day.

"I like Bay St. Louis and I think we'll be back," he said.

TWO HORSE POWER—Sonny Bailes holds his mule, right, and the horse which his wife will be riding to Tennessee. Bailes claims he didn't want to ride a horse during the journey. "I always liked mules," he said. "I think they're twice as smart and twice as strong as a horse," he added. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

"We have identified a number of houses," he added, "We may not move against them."

The letters to the local business followed an order mailed to the city of Bay St. Louis earlier this month.

The order states the commission will not approve any further connections to the collection and treatment system of Bay St. Louis.

"Furthermore, the City is not to allow any additional wastewater flows to enter the collection and treatment system," the order states.

Reasons prompting the commission's action are related to Bay St. Louis' failure to affiliate contractually with the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District by Aug. 1, and because the city failed to transfer responsibility for operation and management of the Bay St. Louis wastewater treatment facilities by Nov. 1.

Bay officials are currently reviewing a contract which would enable the city to join the Waveland Authority.

However, the council has requested Bay St. Louis Attorney Robert Genin present a second opinion of the contract that was drawn up by Bay City Attorney Joseph Gex.

Genin said Friday he expects to have his report completed the week following Thanksgiving.

ETV Brief

LINDERBERGH BABY

"Who Killed the Lindbergh Baby," a documentary examining information from recently released trial and investigation documents concerning the death of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., can be seen at 10 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 1, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

On March 1, 1932, the infant son of Charles A. and Anne Morrow Lindbergh disappeared from his crib. A few weeks later, a baby's body, identified as that of the Lindbergh child, was found half-buried in a wooded stretch five miles from the Lindbergh home. In February of 1936, German-born carpenter Bruno Hauptmann was convicted of the kidnapping/murder. In April he was executed. Throughout his trial and up until his execution, he maintained that he was innocent.

Last year, Hauptmann's widow, now in her 80s, filed suit against the state of New Jersey. She claimed that her husband was wrongfully convicted. The documentary examines trial information and brings into question much of the evidence that was used to indict Hauptmann.

Correction

The copy for the Mattel Pink and Pretty Barbie, advertised on page 1 of our Bigger Selections (etc.) Circular, states that it comes with 60 pc. costumes. This should be 6 pc. We regret any inconvenience this may cause.

Bits 'n pieces

It is so nice to travel over the section of North Beach in Bay St. Louis which is in the process of being resurfaced.

The stretch between US-90 and Ulman Avenue had gotten very bumpy with so many holes being dug to patch the water and gas line.

We hope the weather improves very soon so the job can be completed.

Anyway we really appreciated the area being resurfaced.

Thanksgiving is fast coming upon us. Just think in only a few days it will be here.

We know these are trying times for many, but we still do not have it as bad as say the residents of Poland or Iran, just to mention a couple.

On Monday night, a Community Thanksgiving Service will be held at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church, Bay St. Louis.

This will be a community service, involving ministers of many faiths in our area.

We hope the residents of our area will try and attend these special services beginning at 7 p.m., Monday, Nov. 22.

The special Thanksgiving Message will be given by Bishop Joseph Lawson Howze, Bishop of the Biloxi Diocese.

We hope to see you in church Monday.

Preparations are underway for a benefit bike-a-thon and walk-a-thon for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation according to Hancock County Chairman James Ginn.

A goal of $1,500 has been set by Ginn for the benefit and he urges anyone interested in participating to contact him. Pledges will also be helpful to participants.

This will be the last fund raiser for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and we hope it is successful.

We have noted during the past several weeks the many different colored leaves on the trees.

Now right off, we realize our changes are not as dramatic as many other are, due to the heavy number of pine and evergreen oaks.

We have so many colors in our community, if we look for them. Try it sometime.

Santa will again officially be visiting Hancock County at the Annual Christmas Tree Lighting scheduled for Dec. 5.

Our local leaders will welcome Santa and all of his helpers with assistance from the Bay High Tiger Pride Band.

It may seem a little early to remind you; but, Dec. 5 is not far away, only a few more days.

Christmas will be here in no time. Where did the year go!

There was a nice turnout yesterday afternoon for the Open House held at the Clermont Harbor Volunteer Fire Department.

Fire Chief Charlie Jackson should be real proud of the way so many residents of the area helped make the celebration a success by bringing the many cakes and refreshments.

Clermont Harbor has a nice fire station.

Patrol hopes to avert '71 highway carnage

Preventing a repeat of a 1971 'nightmare' will be the goal of Mississippi's state troopers over the Thanksgiving holiday weekend, Highway Patrol Chief Donald Butler reports.

Thirty-three people were killed in traffic accidents during the 1971 Thanksgiving weekend, the deadliest single holiday period on Mississippi highways in the last 15 years.

"State troopers will be out in force, giving up time with their families to check for violators," Butler said.

"We have canceled all leaves and days off to assure a full complement of officers to patrol the roads that four-day holiday observance."

Butler said troopers will be especially watchful for drunk drivers, noting that a recent survey showed drinking drivers contributed to the deaths of 62 percent of motorists killed during the first seven months of 1982 on roads patrolled by the Highway Patrol.

"Our study showed that from January through July drinking drivers were involved in 50 percent of the fatal automobile accidents on the roads we work," Butler said.

The chief said 212 people have been killed on Highway Patrol assigned roads during the first seven months of this year and that drinking was involved in accidents that caused the deaths of 131 people.

"What is happening on highways is scary because it involves the lives of so many of our young people. Overall statewide in Mississippi records show that from January through October of this year 43 percent of those killed in traffic accidents were under the age of 26. We are talking about 262 young people who are dead," Butler said.

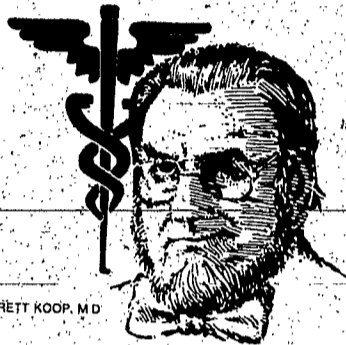

The chief said, "Warnings of stepped-up enforcement of the DUI law by our agency and other law enforcement organizations serves as a deterrent to the drinking driver but the responsibility to protect the lives of all motorists ultimately lies with each individual driver in this state. We hope people will realize this before it is too late for someone they love."

The official holiday period begins at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 24 and ends at midnight on Sunday, Nov. 28.

from the Surgeon General

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES • Public Health Service

MARIJUANA RESEARCH

As surgeon general, I urge other physicians and professionals to advise parents and patients about the harmful effects of using marijuana and to urge discontinuation of its use.

The health consequences of marijuana use have been the subject of scientific and public debate for almost 20 years.

Based on scientific evidence published to date, the Public Health Service has concluded that marijuana has a broad range of psychological and biological effects, many of which are dangerous and harmful to health. Marijuana use is a major public health problem in the United States.

In the past 20 years, there has been a 30-fold increase in the drug's use among youth.

More than a quarter of the American population has used the drug.

The age at which people first use marijuana has been getting consistently lower and is now most often in the junior high school years.

In 1970, nearly 11 percent of high school seniors used the drug daily; and although this figure declined to 7 percent in 1981, daily use of marijuana is still greater than that of alcohol among this age group.

More high school seniors smoke marijuana than smoke cigarettes. The current use (during previous 30 days) of marijuana is 32 percent; 29 percent smoke tobacco.

On March 24, Secretary Schweiker transmitted to the U.S. Congress a report reviewing the health consequences of marijuana use.

"Marijuana and Health, 1982," the ninth in a series, is primarily based on two recently conducted comprehensive scientific reviews on the subject; one by the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences and the other by the Canadian Addiction Research Foundation for the world Health Organization.

Both independent reviews corroborate the Public Health Service prior findings of health hazards associated with marijuana use: Acute intoxication with marijuana interferes with many aspects of mental functioning and has serious acute effects on perception and skilled performance such as driving and other complex tasks involving judgment or fine motor skills.

Among the known or suspected chronic effects of marijuana use are:

- ★ Marijuana impairs short term memory and slows learning;

- ★ Impaired lung function similar to that found in cigarette smokers. Indications are that more serious effects may ensue following extended use;

- ★ decreased sperm count and sperm motility;

- ★ interference with ovulation and prenatal development;

- ★ impaired immune response;

- ★ possible adverse effects on heart function; and

- ★ by-products of marijuana remaining in body fat for several weeks with unknown consequences. The storage of these by-products increases the possibilities for chronic effects as well as residual effects on performance even after the acute reaction to the drug has worn off.

I am especially concerned about the long-term developmental effects of marijuana use on children and adolescents, who are particularly vulnerable to the drug's behavioral and physiological effects.

The "amotivational syndrome" has been attributed by some to prolonged use of marijuana by youth.

The syndrome is characterized by a pattern of loss of energy, diminished school performance, harmed parental relationships and other behavioral disruptions.

Though more research is required to clarify the course and extent, in recent national surveys up to 40 percent of heavy users report that they observe some of all of these symptoms in themselves.

Washington Report

By Congressman Trent Lott

5th District, Mississippi

JOBS PROGRAM, TAXES MONEY BILLS AMONG LIKELY TARGETS OF DEBATE

Programs involving jobs and taxes are among likely targets of debate next week as the 97th Congress enters a final, post-election session.

With the 1982 elections behind it, the Congress may also pass legislation to continue in operation the major departments of the government, including Defense, Labor and Treasury.

Congressman Trent Lott, R-Miss., the House Republican Whip, said because the Congress has left many government activities unfunded, several money bills must now be approved before adjournment of the 97th Congress. Adjournment is expected the week before Christmas.

"The time element involved is such that we must get to work quickly and work with considerable dispatch if we are to finish the job of this Congress," Lott said. "In the area of defense appropriations, we cannot avoid action any longer."

Lott said the 'lame duck' session might also turn its attention to some variety of jobs bill, possibly tied in with a resolution to continue funding of major programs. "While the need to relieve the pressing unemployment problem is acute," he said, "we must take care not to simply throw in another 'make-work' program."

"If we're going to have a truly meaningful jobs bill, we must be very specific about its funding source, its duration and its ability to put Americans back to work without causing further pressures on the economy," he said.

"In the meantime, we have to continue our work of putting the economy back on solid footing," Lott said.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

From a recent article you did, I gather that you think a company's advertising should be changed from time to time. But, what if you have a good thing going? I have.

Dear LH: I think if you look again, you'll find the advice was to keep your ad thrust under constant review.

Changes should be effected only when and if you feel your market share is suffering, or if you feel the nature of your business is changing.

But the weight of evidence now available indicates that consistency and continuity is beneficial to the advertiser.

A while back, Columnist Harry Wayne McMahan in 'Advertising Age' said he found in tracing the case histories of 120 advertising "money-makers" that 75 percent had a continuing central character.

He cited: Marlboro. One basic campaign. Moving slowly, surely to No. 1 around the world. Yet in those countries where a different campaign was used, almost nothing.

"Polaroid." "Star" demonstrations year after year.

"Palmolive dishwashing liquid: Made the Marlboro, 14 years, top slice."

"Timex: John Cameron Swayze for 24 years. Memorable 'torture' tests."

"Kellogg's." "Tony the Tiger" for 24 years, and then a Tony, Jr.

"The evidence kept mounting," he wrote, "You gotta stay with it."

Using a central star or character made it easier to resist change, he noted, "but you gotta quit changing so much."

While his study was of a different kind of ads than those we are concerned with here, the basic principle is the same.

Ads should project a consistent image, with a recognizable style and approach to get optimum results.

This uniformity makes for instant recognition of your ads. Quite frequently cited is the story about a large department store whose ad format and appearance was so recognizable, that when their name was inadvertently left out, the merchandise was sold out anyway.

So, thank you for allowing the issue to be clarified. Certainly the previous column to which you referred did not advocate sudden and frequent changes in advertising approach.

A proprietor must first determine the course of his business, and then see to it that the entire effort, including ads, supports the effort.

State offers information combating hypothermia

This winter many persons, especially the elderly, may suffer from a quiet killer called hypothermia. Hypothermia is associated with the lowering of the body's temperature and poor heating of living quarters.

The Mississippi Department of Energy and Transportation's Energy Answerline has available free information on hypothermia, possible signs of and prevention and treatment of hypothermia.

These materials include an MDEET Energy Dispatch entitled "Warnings to the Consumer about Accidental Hypothermia," and the publications: "Hypothermia - The Dangers," "Hypothermia: A Quiet Killer of the Elderly," "Cut Energy Costs/Keep Cool, Warm with Clothing," "Draft Dodgers for Windows and Doors" and

How do you describe radical?

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, entitled "How Radical Is Santa Monica's Government?" by Harold Johnson, an editor at Public Research Syndicated, Claremont, Calif., is submitted to The Sea Coast Echo by P.R.S.

"Radical" is a word sometimes used to describe the governing coalition in this quiet community situated between Los Angeles and the Pacific Ocean. Indeed, some of its 88,000 residents have taken to calling the beachfront city "The People's Republic."

How accurate are such characterizations? It is certainly true, on the one hand, that the alliance of self-described "progressives" which has controlled Santa Monica's government since the municipal elections of April 1981 includes a number of people with impeccable activist credentials.

Mayor Ruth Yanatta Goldway, for example, is a longtime consumer advocate who was a key organizer for the 1973 nationwide meat boycott.

Other city council members, as well as a number of bureaucrats, have close ties to 60s activist Tom Hayden, a Santa Monica resident, and his statewide political organization, the Campaign for Economic Democracy.

Some of the rhetoric employed by these officials also tends to mark them as part of the New Left.

For instance, planning commissioner Derek Shearer, an urban affairs professor who is married to Goldway, describes himself as an "economic democrat" working for "a more equal distribution of wealth, property and power" in his city and throughout the country.

Yet though city officials might project a leftist image, the major policies they have advanced are far from revolutionary.

To be sure, those policies — strict rent control and a restrictive approach to development being the most controversial — would not have been put forward by the chamber of commerce conservatives who governed the city without interruption prior to 1981.

Nevertheless, they are policies with numerous precedents in the practices of other American communities.

Consider the city's rent control ordinance, the defense of which was the major theme in the liberals' 1981 election campaign. Truly, in a city 80% of whose residents are tenants, rent control was the issue most responsible for propelling the "progressives" to power.

A stringent law — it prohibits, for instance, decontrol of rents when apartments are vacated — the Santa Monica ordinance was enacted by referendum in 1979, following a decade-long real estate boom which had increased the median rent in the city by over 100%.

Significantly, Santa Monica is not the only city to have been plagued by skyrocketing rents in recent years. Neither is it the only one to have reacted by placing controls on the rental market. In California alone, a number of municipalities have resorted to rent control. And most of these cities — which include

Los Angeles, Thousand Oaks and San Francisco — stand well within the mainstream of American politics.

Provisions similar to some of the most controversial elements of the Santa Monica Law can be found in the ordinances of other American cities.

New York City's statute, for example, resembles Santa Monica's in disallowing the inclusion of mortgage interest in the cost — calculations — a landlord submits to the rent control authority.

Moreover, a prohibition against apartment vacancy decontrol was part of the Nixon Administration's wage and price control program.

If Santa Monica's city officials are revolutionaries on the rent control front, they certainly have had some staid co-insurrectionists.

The same observation can be made with regard to the city's hotly debated development policies. Among the objects of those policies, asserts Mayor Goldway, is "to keep Santa Monica a small scale, human place."

In line with this, the new city council majority — gaining power after what Goldway terms "a period of unchecked, unplanned development" — imposed a six-month "emergency" moratorium on all new construction.

And since the moratorium expired, new rules have taken effect imposing more restrictive height and bulk limits on most commercial development.

Goldway's concern about the scale of buildings is one often expressed — and acted upon — by city fathers in conservative suburban communities.

Likewise, Santa Monica's practice of negotiating "planning agreements" with developers is not as novel as some would make out.

The purpose of that policy, Goldway maintains, is twofold: to "help procure public needs in an era of diminishing federal and state contributions," and to help rectify "a shortage of affordable housing" which resulted from the real estate boom of the 70s.

Accordingly, commercial developers seeking permission to build in Santa Monica have had to agree to construct "mixed use" projects — i.e., developments including "community-oriented" facilities like day care centers and affordable housing units.

Some developers term this practice "extortion." But it is not markedly different from the policies of numerous cities across the country that have long required developers to finance public improvements such as sewer and road construction.

Some communities even require the donation of land for schools and parks, and sometimes they insist the developer construct these facilities.

And Santa Monica is not the first municipality to extract housing-related concessions from developers.

San Francisco has in the past mandated the construction of affordable units by some commercial developers, and it is working on a comprehensive plan to require office developers to subsidize low and moderate income housing.

What's more, over 20 political jurisdictions in California — including traditionally conservative Orange County — have enacted "inclusionary zoning" ordinances that require real estate developers to make a certain percentage of their houses "affordable" for lower and middle income people.

To suggest that Santa Monica's officials are not radical innovators, however, is not to affirm the soundness of their ways.

The rent control law — under which landlords have been allowed yearly rent increases averaging only 5.5% in a period of exceptionally high inflation, and mortgage interest rates — appears to be undermining the value of residential income property.

According to a study done by UCLA economist Werner

Hirsch, the value of Santa Monica residential income property that changed hands both in 1978 — before rent control — and in 1981 declined by 22%.

During the same period, similar property increased in value in Hirsch's "test" cities — seven communities also in Los Angeles County and comparable in size to Santa Monica, but without rent control.

Santa Monica, which last year derived over ten percent of its revenue from property taxes, can ill afford a long-term decline in the value of its apartment buildings.

Still more fiscally crippling, however, would be a "development chill" in the city. And there are indications that such a phenomenon has already set in.

All the major building projects begun since the liberals assumed power were in the works previously.

And if a new project of any magnitude is being considered, local business leaders don't know about it.

"Especially in a down period economically," said one, "developers will go where tough bargaining over planning agreements isn't the order of the day."

This city's policies, then, threaten to undermine the community's fiscal base.

Ironically, they could thereby hinder some of the "progressives" cherished goals — such as the creation of city-financed low income housing complexes.

Small Business Center ribbon cutting slated

Official opening of The University of Mississippi's Small Business Development Center offices in Long Beach is set for Monday with U. S. Rep. Trent Lott as honored guest.

A dedication program and ribbon-cutting is set for 3 p.m. at Cooke Hall on the University of Southern Mississippi's Gulf Park campus, where the SBDC satellite offices are located.

In addition to the congressman, dignitaries expected include University Chancellor Porter L. Fortune Jr.; James A. Fleming, director of university development and former executive director of SBDC; Dean M. Lynn Spruill of the School of Business Administration; and Charles Sewell, president of the SBDC Advisory Board, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Deposit Guaranty National Bank.

Lott will be recognized for his major support of the centers which were created in 1980 to provide a wide range of management, training and technical services to Mississippi's 40,000 small businesses.

Ole Miss operates the centers under a cooperative arrangement among all of the state's institutions of higher learning.

Headquartered in Jackson, it is a partnership service between higher education, government and private enterprise designed to help small business owners and managers who need technical expertise but cannot afford expensive consulting assistance.

Other satellite offices are operated in Tupelo, Meridian and Natchez. The Gulf Coast office, newest in the state, was opened in February and has already held a number of training seminars and workshops and provided individualized services for small coastal businesses.

Director of the satellite center is Wes Bennett, who has engineering and business administration degrees and 12 years experience with the U.S. Air Force.

Prior to the 3 p.m. dedication, a luncheon in appreciation of Lott's support of the centers is set for the Long Beach Ramada Inn.

Weather warnings offered to Gulf South outdoorsmen

Winter hunters and fishermen in the Gulf South rarely think of hypothermia.

And yet the condition—abnormally low body temperature—usually caused by a combination of cold and wetness can not only cause severe illness but even death.

Avid hunters and fishermen in the south are misled by the fact that temperatures are rarely in the freezing range and many fail to take proper precautions," says Dr. Chesley Hines Jr. of the Ochsner Clinic staff in New Orleans, and himself an avid outdoorsman.

Hypothermia can occur even when the temperature is in the 40's, if the sportsman should fall into the water or meet a heavy rain, Dr. Hines points out.

For those who carry liquor on board and tend to drink some when they are chilled and wet, "don't do it," Dr. Hines cautions. "A drink of alcohol rather than warming you up, actually dilates the blood vessels in the skin and causes further loss of heat," he explains, urging outdoorsmen to wait until they are safely back at camp before taking a drink.

All of the problems of hypothermia can be avoided with the use of proper protective clothing. This includes a hat. "About 40 percent of body heat is lost through the head. Wearing a hat which is both warm and waterproof can go a long way toward protecting you if you're caught in a winter rain," he adds.

Layered clothing, including thermal or long underwear, is a must in cold weather. A careful outdoorsman living in our mild climate always takes an extra layer of clothing with him in case there is a sudden weather change, he says.

Down-filled clothing is no good if you get wet, Dr. Hines cautions. "It's better to have clothing filled with the new synthetic waterproof materials which are as warm as down. These can be taken off, wrung out, and put back on to allow body heat to dry them out."

He also suggests stowing matches in a waterproof package aboard the boat just in case you have to spend the night in the marshes and need to make a fire.

"Every year a number of hunters and fishermen die needlessly from exposure because they don't take these simple precautions," Dr. Hines points out.

Baseball coaches group names State's Ron Polk

Head Coach Ron Polk of Mississippi State has been chosen fourth vice-president of the American Association of College Baseball Coaches.

Polk, a native of Boston, Mass., and longtime resident of Phoenix, Ariz., before he moved to the Southeast region as a coach, will ascend to the AACBC presidency in 1986-87 by order of officer succession.

The MSU mentor, who has compiled a 252-121 mark at State for seven years and who is 407-185 for 11 seasons as a major college head coach, will serve with President Dave Kellitz of Central Michigan during the 1982-83 term.

Polk has served on the association's public relations and All-American committees (the latter for the last eight years) as well as the international baseball committee.

He will assist in a number of capacities at the association's national convention in San Diego, Calif., during January 1983, as fourth vice-president.

"I'm very honored and pleased to have the opportunity to aid an organization that has meant so much to me over the past 16 years in college coaching," Polk related.

State's baseball coach has recently finished his seventh autumn baseball season and is optimistic about state's 1983 diamond squad.

Dardar, Fricke exchange vows

Cheryl Lynette Fricke became the bride of Walter J. Dardar III in an evening ceremony November 12 at the Bay St. Louis home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Fricke.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Dardar Jr. of Clermont Harbor.

Rev. Clyde Page officiated at the 6:30 p.m. ceremony.

Musical selections were taped by Charles Watzke III, uncle of the groom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white lace gown fashioned with empire styling, square neckline and long sleeves. She carried a nosegay of ivory silk roses, forget-me-nots, pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath with satin streamers.

Brigitte Wiley of Bay St. Louis served her sister as matron of honor.

She wore a formal gown with empire bodice and lace insert, and criss-cross sash tied in the back and carried a silk nosegay of pastel blue forget-me-nots and ivory roses.

Bill Wiley of Bay St. Louis, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man.

Tabitha (Tabby) Wiley, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Anthony Dardar, brother of the groom, was ring bearer. The couple will reside in Kenner, La.

Ashman residence among highlights on JA's Christmas Tour of Homes

The second annual Christmas Tour of Homes, sponsored by the Bay St. Louis Junior Auxiliary, will be conducted Sunday, Dec. 5, from 2 to 5 p.m.

Homes to be open for the tour include those of Mr. and Mrs. W.T. Pittman, 236 North Beach, Bay St. Louis; Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Murphy, 102 Mollers Drive, Waveland; Mr. and Mrs. T.D. Ashman, 107 Laffitte Drive, Waveland; and the Landmark Townsquare Restaurant and Lounge, 210

Main Street, Bay St. Louis. The solar home of Mr. and Mrs. Ashman will be the House of Good Cheer, and will feature a boutique of hand-made Christmas items and food.

The building, which was completed in 1980, combines the comfort and elegance of the inside with the openness and beauty of the outside. Of special interest are the revolving television stand, the triple fireplaces, as well as the indoor swimming pool and the plant area that changes with the seasons.

Many of the decorations have been crafted by the owners or their friends. Among these accessories are lamps with shell bases, Chiny tapestries by Mrs. Ashman and a stained-glass fireplace mantle by Dix Ashman.

The theme for this home is "Christmas in Gold," and will feature decorations in gold and white throughout. There will also be Santa Claus with his reindeer pulling his sleigh floating in the center of the pool.

Tickets for the Christmas Tour of Homes, which cost $10 per person, are available at Ellen Kane Gifts, The Princess Shoppe and Anthony's Men's Wear, Bay St. Louis; The Golden Parrot, Waveland; Diana's Hair Artists, Diamondhead; or from any Bay St. Louis Junior Auxiliary member.

OLG the setting for Bilbo, Bordelon vows

Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church in Bay St. Louis was the setting for the November 6 wedding of Darlene Annette Bordelon and Theodore O'Neal Bilbo.

The bride is the daughter of Pearl B. Bordelon of Bay St. Louis and Nolan J. Bordelon of Louisiana. The groom's parents are Lillian Carver of Bay St. Louis and the late Matthew Bilbo.

Rev. Francis Farrell, officiated at the 1 p.m. double ring ceremony. Arrangements of autumn flowers in brass stands decorated the sanctuary.

Nuptial music was provided by Mark Smith, vocalist, accompanied by organist Mrs. John McKenna.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of chantilly lace over bridal taffeta. The fitted bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline overlaid with jeweled chantilly lace. The full skirt was fashioned with tiers of lace which swept to a chapel train. Her veil of silk illusion was held by a lace caplet. She designed her cascade bouquet of silk tea roses, white rosebuds, baby's breath and pearl clusters interspersed with white satin leaves and tiny autumn flowers.

Nancy D. Gillespie of Bay St. Louis was maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Betty Collins of Bay St. Louis, sister of the bride; Carol Ann Thomas of Bay St. Louis and Camella Necaise of Picayune, sisters of the groom; Christy Bilbo, daughter of the groom, and Naomi Heltzmann, both of Bay St. Louis.

The attendants were attired in avocado green satin prairie skirts with ruffled hemlines and white blouses featuring Victorian lace necklines, and sheer lace yokes. They carried bouquets designed by the bride, fashioned with white rosebuds, clusters of autumn flowers and greenery entwined with grapes.

Tracy Collins, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Ted Bilbo, son of the groom, was ring bearer.

E. J. Santinelli of Pass Christian was best man.

Groomsmen were Gerry Collins, brother-in-law of the bride; Curtis Thomas Sr., brother-in-law of the groom; Jay Heltzmann and Scott Collins, nephew of the bride, all of Bay St. Louis; and Larry Necaise of Picayune, brother-in-law of the groom.

The bride's mother chose for the occasion a formal rust gown featuring pleated skirt and sheer sleeves. The mother of the groom was attired in a floor length gown of lavender with sheer puffed sleeves and pleated skirt.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Hancock County Fairgrounds Building. A western theme was used in decorations.

Michelle Heltzmann assisted at the punch and cake tables. For traveling to Walt Disney World in Orlando, Fla., the bride chose a lavender pleated skirt with matching sweater.

The couple will reside in Bay St. Louis.

Garden ceremony unites Fricke, Dardar

April Marie Dardar and Darryl Wayne Fricke exchanged vows Saturday, October 16 at the Bay St. Louis home of Charles Watzke Jr., grandfather of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Dardar Jr. of Clermont Harbor. The groom's parents are Margaret Diane Fricke of Carriere and the late Clayton Eugene Fricke.

Rev. Clyde Page officiated at the 11 a.m. garden ceremony. A brass bridal arch decorated with wedding bells and standing baskets of white gladioli and pink hibiscus formed the background setting.

Musical selections were taped by Charles Watzke III, uncle of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an intermission length ivory gown of schiffli lace, featuring mandarin collar, empire bodice of scalloped embroidered lace and long tapered sleeves. Her lace trimmed bridal hat was adorned with streamers of illusion. She carried a silk nosegay of ivory roses, pink sweetheart roses, forget-me-nots and baby's breath with satin ribbon streamers.

Colleen Leddoff of Chalmette, La. attended the bride as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Darlene Watzke, aunt of the bride; Elizabeth Thibideaux, cousin of the bride, and Cheryl Fricke, niece of the groom, all of Bay St. Louis.

The attendants were attired in formal gowns in pastel colors and carried silk nosegays of ivory roses and pastel forget-me-nots with ribbon streamers color coordinated to their gowns. They wore small floral hairpieces of complementary flowers.

Tabitha (Tabby) Wiley of Bay St. Louis, niece of the groom, was flower girl. Anthony Dardar of Bay St. Louis, brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

Phillip Collier of Picayune served the groom as best man. Groomsmen were Kevin Copling and Greg Copling of Picayune and Walter Dardar of Bay St. Louis, brother of the bride.

Serving as ushers were Charles Watzke and Dave Watzke of Bay St. Louis, uncles of the bride.

A reception followed the ceremony in the garden of the bride's grandfather's home. Assisting were John Watzke and Norma Watzke, uncle and aunt of the bride; Betty Thibideaux, aunt of the bride; and Virginia Fricke, sister-in-law of the groom, all of Bay St. Louis.

Approximately 250 local and out-of-town guests attended.

The couple will reside in Clermont Harbor.

Camellia Society offers growing tips

What do you need to know about growing camellias?

You can receive answers from a panel of volunteer experts, courtesy of the Gulfport Camellia Society.

Get down your questions and call any of the following: Al Powell, 863-2616; Harry Stone, 863-1060; and Dr. Lyle Robertson, 863-3605; or Edgar Little, 896-1353.

According to Dr. Robertson, president of the Gulfport Camellia Society, this free service is offered to assist persons interested in the cultivation of camellias. New growers often need advice on the basics of camellia growing, such as fertilization, spraying, grafting, or gibbing. It is a great experience providing beautiful camellia blooms to share with friends and neighbors. The Camellia Society is anxious to share the knowledge and experience of its members.

Newcomers plan Christmas dance

The Gulf Coast Newcomers Club met November 9 at the Best Western Motel. Members brought food items for the Thanksgiving basket for a family in need.

The guest speaker was Jo Love Little, owner of WLOX-TV, Biloxi. She spoke about her life and about her father who was the first owner of WLOX-TV.

The Newcomers Club will have a Christmas Dinner Dance at the Pass Christian Yacht Club on December 4 at 7:30 p.m.

Following the December 7 board meeting at the home of Pat Lee, Gulfport, a Christmas covered dish luncheon will be held for the board.

The Newcomers Club will meet December 14 at the Best Western Motel.

Cuevas, Martinez to wed in Biloxi

The engagement of Michele Marie Cuevas of Ocean Springs to Arnaldo Gaspar Martinez of Mobile, Ala. is announced by her parents, Monroe F. Cuevas Jr. and Graciela Villalobos Cuevas of Ocean Springs.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leopoldo Villalobos of Guatemala City and Ocean Springs, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Cuevas Sr. of Bay St. Louis.

She is a graduate of Ocean Springs High School and received a bachelor of Science degree in nursing from The University of South Alabama, Mobile.

The prospective groom is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Lusilla and Mr. and Mrs. Jose Martinez, all of Cuba.

He is a graduate of Miami Springs Senior High School and the University of Florida, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering and masters degree in industrial and systems engineering. He is employed with Alabama Power in Mobile, Ala.

The couple will exchange vows in a 3 p.m. ceremony December 11 at St. Michael's Catholic Church in Biloxi.

Brief

"Kennedy's Children," a drama by Robert Patrick, will be performed Dec. 1-4 at 8 p.m. in the University of New Orleans Performing Arts Center Theatre South.

A UNO theatre workshop production, the performances are free and open to the public.

Set in a New York bar in 1974, the play tells the story of how some people's lives were changed by the assassination of John Kennedy. The characters, remnants of the '60's generation, explore their lives to discover which choices brought them to their present point of stagnation.

Unable any longer to relate to other people, they trace their lives during the "Kennedy years" in alternating monologues.

Included in the cast are Michael Putiak, Elizabeth Christopher, Charlie Krebs, Kay Kitchin, Tim Arnoult and Judy Nelson. Frank Dominguez directs.

Saks Fifth Avenue to highlight N.O. riverfront shopping mall

Saks Fifth Avenue, anchor tenant of the 280,000 square foot Canal Place retail mall in New Orleans, participated in topping-out ceremonies recently at the mall construction site at the foot of Canal Street, near the Mississippi River.

Mall managing partner, Joseph C. Canzaro said the topping-out marked a significant milestone as construction of the retail mall proceeded on schedule toward a Fall 1983 opening.

Saks in New Orleans will be the focal point for the Canal Place retail mall, occupying 78,000 square feet on three levels.

Besides Saks, the mall will feature FAO Schwarz, a nationally famous manufacturer and retailer of fine children's toys; fashion-oriented Kreeger's and The Limited; and Upstart Crow — a top quality book store and restaurant.

Other nationally and internationally known fashion retailers are expected to join Saks with announcements in the near future.

Upon completion, the 75 retailers will comprise the largest collection of high fashion stores under a single roof in the Gulf South.

Saks Fifth Avenue and other retailers in Canal Place will join Brooks Brothers, the renowned men's clothing store which opened in 1980 as part of Canal Place One, the first of five phases in the Canal Place construction process.

The Ibisville at Canal Place, a 500-room executive Trusthouse Forte Hotel, is also part of Phase II and will be completed in mid-1984.

The Trusthouse Forte chain is the largest hotel, catering and leisure group in the world, operating prestigious hotels such as the Grosvenor House and Hyde Park in London, The George V and Plaza-Athenes in Paris and the Westbury in New York City.

Canzaro said that the topping-out of Saks marked a milestone for Canal Place. "This is the most impressive urban development in the United States, and it is with great pride that we view today the progress that our retail anchor, Saks Fifth Avenue, is making in its efforts to open to the public in October of 1983."

"In just one short year, shoppers from all parts of Louisiana, Mississippi, and Coastal Alabama will be attracted to this high fashion store in Canal Place," the developer feels.

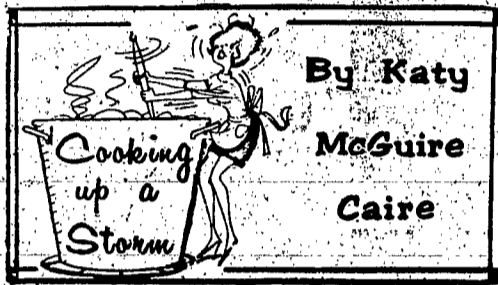

"Saks is dedicated to offering the unusual, the unique, and this store in Canal Place will enhance their reputation for making shopping a warm and exciting experience," he said.

Canzaro added that he was particularly pleased that Canal Place construction is on schedule. "Beginning with the Christmas season next year and through the New Orleans World's Fair in '84, Canal Place will offer the finest shopping facility found anywhere for tourists, conventioners and residents," he said.

Physically situated at the front of Canal Place, Saks will be an entrance to the entire three-story glass-enclosed mall. Atriums and walkways will enhance the mall's architectural link with the entire Canal Place complex.

In addition, 20 percent of the mall, including most of the third floor, will be developed as a food court featuring some of New Orleans' gourmet restaurants and specialty food outlets.

Mississippi "cats" are headliners these days on the international gourmet scene — in Paris, no less, that ultra gourmet city.

That's where Mississippi farm-raised fresh water catfish are in the limelight at the famous international food show now in progress, with 3,200 or more exhibitors from all around the world vying for honors.

Mississippi's 400 commercial fresh water catfish growers produce 85 percent of the world's catfish supply, says Mike Shelton of Gulfport, acting district director of the SBA (Small Business Association) in Mississippi, a claim seconded by Lester Myers of Indianola, president of the Catfish Farmers' Association of America.

It's about time, in my opinion, for fresh water "cats" to get their due as the delectable food they are — whether fresh caught and "mealed" and fried over an open fire, or made into other dishes.

Catfish and hush puppies are an old, old time treat still enjoyed all over the South, for the deep Southerner loves his catfish.

Even Larrouse, that arbiter of classic French cuisine, in his "Larrouse Gastronomique," the bible of French cooks, classes the catfish this way: "The flesh is delicate, and there are not too many bones."

Shelton observes that Europeans prefer the catfish other than deep-fried. That's easy, the catfish fillet adapts itself very tastily to a myriad of fancy fish dishes...and many a "cat" has come to table in restaurant or home masquerading as trout, believe me!

In the days of the Depression and the years after, catfish was quite an item on many a menu, often served as trout. And our family cook made a delectable dish which she called

MARDI GRAS TROUT

(Because, of course, it was our old friend, the Mississippi river catfish, masquerading as trout so that my father's pride would not be offended in those purse-poor days for all of us. It's a dressed up version of the soul cook's catfish stew, embellished for the master's table.)

2 lbs. catfish fillets, cut into small serving pieces
2 lbs. Irish potatoes, sliced, about 1/2 inch thick
1/2 cup bacon fat or butter
Pepper, red pepper
Tabasco sauce to taste, salt optional

Fish stock or water
Layer catfish pieces and sliced potatoes alternately in a heavy baking dish, with a cover, dotting each layer with the butter or bacon drippings, and sprinkling seasonings over.

Add just enough of the fish stock or water to cover, and bake, covered, in a 325 to 350° oven until fish and potatoes are tender. (Four to six servings). You may have to add more potatoes — oh, and be sure to end up with a top layer of potatoes!

Incidentally, our cook had often caught the catfish herself, on trot line or pole.

Another tasty serving was her "Bitty Bites" as she called them, catfish fillets cut bite-size, lavishly peppered (not just black pepper, but coarse cracked or ground pepper) and splashed with Tabasco.

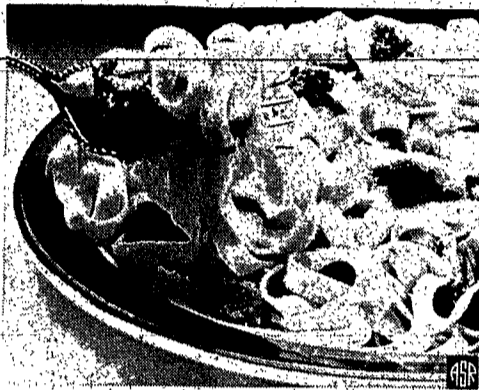

She would brush melted butter over first (rather, margarine at that time, though she didn't let Dad know it) before shaking the pepper over both sides, then frying in hot fat till golden brown.

Another of her culinary tricks was this: Cut catfish fillets into chunks, do the same with peeled eggplant. Sprinkle with seasoned flour, then fry the catfish bites in butter, the eggplant bits in oil. Drain well.

Make a nest of French fried potatoes, bundle the catfish and eggplant bites in, sprinkle lemon juice and Tabasco sauce over, along with minced parsley. Top with melted, browned butter. "Cat" gone to glory!

Fettuccini With Vegetables

6 oz. uncooked fettuccini
2 c. diagonally sliced
1/2 c. carrots
2 c. broccoli
flowerettes
6 tbsp.
2 tsp. all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1 c. milk
1/4 c. Parmesan cheese

In 3-qt. saucepan bring 2-qt. water to a boil. Add fettuccini and carrots, cook over med. heat 6 min. Add broccoli, continue cooking until carrots and broccoli are crisp tender (4 to 5 min.). Drain. Rinse with hot water; set aside. In same saucepan melt butter. Stir in flour, salt and nutmeg; stir in milk. Cook over med. heat, stirring often, until sauce comes to a full boil (8 to 10 min.). Boil 1 min. Stir in fettuccini mixture. Reduce heat to low; continue cooking until heated through (3 to 4 min.). To serve, sprinkle with Parmesan cheese.

YIELD: 6 servings

Power company suit settlement refunds due

Mississippi Power Company, under Public Service Commission approved procedures, will refund $1.5 million to customers as part of the utility's $455 million settlement with Peabody Coal Company in 1981, according to Alan Barton, president of the Gulfport-based utility.

"The refund, based on kilowatt-hour usage from December 1981 to November 1982, will be credited to customers in their January 1983 bills," Barton said.

"For most residential customers this will average around $2, some more or less depending on kilowatt-hour consumption. Eligible recipients will be those customers of record for November 1982."

The refund results from settlement of a breach of contract lawsuit filed in 1975 by Mississippi Power Company in behalf of its customers against Peabody Coal Company for failure to deliver coal under conditions of a long-term contract.

"The failure to deliver the coal forced us to purchase more expensive coal on the spot market and ultimately to pass the increased cost on to customers," Barton said.

"In an effort to protect our customers' against unnecessary fuel increases, Mississippi Power on its own initiative decided to take legal action to recover the added fuel costs and to return this money to our customers."

The payment plan outlined in the settlement provides for Peabody Coal Company to pay Mississippi Power Company $1.5 million in December 1982, 1983, 1984, and 1985 and $9 million in 1986.

In 1981 Mississippi Power Company recovered and refunded $40 million of the $55 million.

GCJC Lady Bulldogs play Mon. and Tue.

The Lady Bulldogs of Gulf Coast Junior College resume play with a series of games scheduled for Nov. 22 and 23 with East Mississippi, East Central, and Holmes. The games will be hosted on Perkinson Campus.

The Lady 'Dogs opened the season at Pensacola by a 71-68 win.

The team is looking for one of their best seasons since Coach Doris Smith took over four years ago.

"Five sophomores are returning, and we have done a good job of recruiting," Smith said.

Freshmen are Deborah Burts of Moss Point; Shawn Decareaux of Pearl River High, La.; Connie Brown of Gulfport; Lentreise Gregorie and Kim Clark, both of East St. John, La.; Kellie Fox of Central, La.; Fran Jacobs and Tammie Dedaux, both of Pass Christian; Darla Atkinson of South LaFourche, La.; and Elandera Thomas of Pascagoula.

Other home games are Nov. 29 - East Central; Dec. 1 - Pensacola; Dec. 7 - Utica; Jan. 3 and 4 - Quebec Canada; Jan. 13 - Hinds; Jan. 18 - Jones; Jan. 27 - Pearl River; Feb. 3 - Southwest; and Feb. 10 - Copiah-Lincoln.

Away games are Dec. 2 - Pearl River; Dec. 10 and 11 - Pensacola Tournament; Jan. 11 - East Central; Jan. 15 - Utica; Jan. 20 - Southwest; Jan. 24 Copiah-Lincoln; Feb. 1 - Jones; and Feb. 8 - Hinds.

After having a dismal season last year of 8 wins and 13 losses, Smith is eyeing this year with optimism. "We are going up against some stiff competition, but barring injuries should have a real good season," she added.

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

"I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." — John 10:10

By Shawn Murphy

MINISTER, BAY ST. LOUIS CHURCH OF CHRIST

Once again the holiday season is upon us. And if properly observed and not abused the holidays can bring us great joy.

It is helpful I think to remember that the actual day of the holiday is not, and should not be, the only time that we think on its theme. I'm mindful of the birth of my Savior throughout the year, not simply on December 25.

The resurrection of that same Lord is something I glory in each time I share the Gospel with someone. And each Lord's day as I partake of the Lord's Supper my mind renews the death, burial and resurrection of Jesus Christ, not simply on Easter Sunday!

Thanksgiving is no different. To only thank God for his blessings on one day in the month of November would be an insult and a mockery to the God we call "Father."

Indeed, thankfulness is a Biblical theme which is rich and found flowing equally strong in both the Old and New Testaments.

The Psalmist encourages us to "Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise; be thankful unto him, and bless his name." (Psalm 100:4).

We are also admonished to "offer unto God thanksgiving" (Ps. 50:14); "magnify him with thanksgiving" (Ps. 69:30); "come before his face with thanksgiving" (Ps. 95:2); and to "sing unto the Lord with thanksgiving" (Ps. 147:7).

In the New Testament, Paul writes "with thanksgiving, let your request be made known unto God." (Phil. 4:6).

As we read God's Word one cannot miss the fact that the Christian's life above all things is to be one which "abounds in thanksgiving" (Col. 2:7).

I'm convinced that one reason we don't show our thankfulness more is because we don't recognize a blessing when we see one. For instance, it may be hard to recognize a crying baby as a blessing. But to the childless couple that baby even at that fateful moment would be the greatest blessing on earth!

The following poem is entitled the "Family Prayer of Thanksgiving." It will teach you as it has me to recognize blessings that are sometimes disguised.

FAMILY PRAYER OF THANKSGIVING

"Lord, thank you for this sink of dirty dishes — we have good food to eat.

Thank you for this pile of dirty laundry — we have nice clothes to wear.

I'd like to thank you for these unmade beds — they were all comfortable last night.

My thanks for this bathroom, complete with splattered mirror, soggy towels and grimy lavatory — it's still very convenient.

Thank you for this glider, smudged refrigerator, that needs defrosting so badly — it has served us faithfully for a long time and inside are cool drinks and enough leftovers for another meal.

Thank you for this oven that absolutely must be cleaned today — it has baked us many good things over the years.

Our whole family is grateful for that tall grass that needs mowing — we all enjoy our private yard.

Thank you for that slamming screen door — the children are healthy and able to run and play.

Lord, the presence of all these chores awaiting me shows that you have richly blessed this family. I shall do them all cheerfully and gratefully.

May you have a very happy, healthy and thankful Thanksgiving!

Parish News

The second collection today is for the Campaign for Human Development. Since 1970, American Catholics have contributed over $80 million in their fight against poverty. Some 25 percent of the collection will remain in the diocese for local justice oriented efforts.

Of every $1 the national office receives, 95 cents goes directly into self help grants and loans.

Kindly remember in prayer Tezeina Shante Patricia Benoit, daughter of Leslie Benoit, and Tashonda Marie Benoit, daughter of Pauline Benoit, who were baptized at St. Rose last Sunday.

Today at 3 p.m. the parish will present Alcorn State University Choir in concert and drama at St. Augustine Seminary Gymnasium. Tickets are available at door. Adults $3; Students (college included) and Senior Citizens $2; and Children (5-12 years) $1.50.

Today at Mass parish council members will be nominated. Parishioners 18 years and over are urged to nominate one person for each of the five open positions. Elections will be conducted the weekend of Dec. 6.

Religious instructions public school children will be as follows: Today, 10 a.m., Kindergarten through 8th grade and Pre Confirmation Class; Today, 1 p.m., Confirmation Class; Monday, 6 p.m., 11th and 12th grades. No classes next weekend due to Thanksgiving holidays.

Parishioners are invited to attend the Community Thanksgiving Service held this year on Monday, 7 p.m., at Our Lady of the Gulf Church. Bishop Howze will deliver the Thanksgiving Message.

Little People Choir will practice on Tuesday, 5:30 p.m.; Gospel Choir, 6:30 p.m. Only one Mass is scheduled on Thanksgiving Day, a family celebration at 9 a.m.

Canned goods or money offering, presented in the Offertory procession, will be distributed later to the needy. Little People Choir will sing.

After Mass, refreshments will be served in cafeteria.

Altar Society will meet next Sunday in the rectory after the 9 a.m. Mass.

Catholic Youth Organization will next meet on Monday, Nov. 29, 7 p.m.

MASS SCHEDULE

Sunday, 7 and 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Daily, Monday through Saturday, 6:30 a.m., except this Thursday.

Thanksgiving Day at 9 a.m. Saturday (Vigil) 6 p.m. Novena Devotion to Mother of Perpetual Help at beginning of Tuesday Mass.

Confessions are heard half-hour before weekend Masses and upon request.

Money Talk

By Norine Barnes

A savings plan is often the first step taken by those who eventually achieve financial independence. Some begin at an early age by saving a portion of their earnings from a paper route or babysitting. Later, part of each month's salary is committed to savings. Still later, some savings are shifted to flexible dollar investments which increase in value.

For heads of families, a traditional rule of thumb has been to have the equivalent of three months' salary in savings before considering alternative investments. This guideline could, of course, be modified by your age, your children's ages, adequacy of insurance protection, present and future earning power, and your attitude toward risk.

Financial experts have suggested the following guidelines for those who are just beginning to save:

1. Saving regularly and in relatively small amounts is generally more effective than setting aside larger sums at sporadic intervals.

2. Pay yourself first to make savings a habit. This means that you include some savings (such as $20 per paycheck) as a fixed expense in your budget.

3. Use different types of savings for different objectives. In general, the more readily available the savings is (that is, the greater the liquidity), the lower the interest paid on the savings. Thus, if you are saving for a specific purpose which may be some time off, such as the purchase of a new car, the higher interest obtained for a longer commitment may be to your benefit.

If you would like more information regarding how to design a savings plan to fit your needs, call or visit the Cooperative Extension Service office.

SPEC 2 BISSONNETTE

Navy Mess Management Specialist 2nd Class Robert E. Bissonnette, son of Henry F. and Lillian E. Bissonnette of 213 Henderson, Pass Christian, has recently participated in the Navy Reserve exercise "TENOREX 82."

"TENOREX 82" was a simulated operational readiness exercise conducted in New Orleans and Houston simultaneously using a computer-programmed shipboard simulator. The exercise involved selected reservists from Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, and Florida. The simulated combat operational problem tested the abilities of reservists to "augment naval ships in the event of a national emergency."

The reservists are placed in accurate duplications of various shipboard departments, including the bridge, combat information center, propulsion and damage control compartments. Through the use of a central computer, these different departments are given various emergencies and the crew must react as if they were at sea.

At the conclusion of the exercise each unit is graded on its performance and compared with other Naval Reserve units.

ASCS News

Farmers of Pearl River and Hancock Counties are reminded of the availability of the price support loans on soybeans, rice, wheat, corn, grain sorghum and honey. These loans are made available by the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) and are administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

the Pearl River-Hancock County ASCS Office in Poplarville.

Gennin went on to say that the current market situation indicates that price support loan activity will be heavy. ASCS personnel are making plans to provide the best possible service. In order to avoid problems and misunderstandings, producers are encouraged to call or come by the ASCS office and get detailed loan information prior to the time they apply for commodity loans.

Let's Go To Market

Cranberries are available all year in various forms, but most of the fresh crop comes to market during November and December, just in time for the holidays.

Many of our Thanksgiving traditions stem from the early Pilgrims. Much of the food we prepare and serve is similar to the foods the Pilgrims had available for their feast of Thanksgiving. Cranberries follow right along with the "early" food, since the Pilgrims were introduced to the cranberry by the Indians in the New England area.

The different tribes of Indians had various names for this small round berry, but the Pilgrims began to call it cranberry. This name supposedly came because the blossom of the berry looked like they had a crane, and cranes like to eat these berries.

Whatever the reason for the name, this fruit soon became quite important for the New Englanders. The cranberry, when raw, is an excellent source of Vitamin C. The men of the area would take cranberries, immersed in barrels of water, on seafaring voyages. The addition of the cranberries in their diet would help them ward off the dreaded disease, scurvy.

Today cranberries are an important part of the holiday meal plans and year-round uses. They are good in dozens of ways. Use them fresh as a garnish on the meat platter, or add a few berries to a fruit salad to give a colorful flavor twist.

You can grind cranberries for many more uses. Try adding a half cup of cranberries to cake batter, bread, or mixture for muffins. One favorite way of using ground cranberries is to mix about four cups of berries with two oranges which have been quartered and seeded and then ground. (You grind the whole orange, including peel). Blend in approximately two cups of sugar. Let the flavors "mingle" for several hours before serving your delicious cranberry-orange relish. This relish, atop the whipped cream, adds the finishing touch to that Thanksgiving pumpkin pie.

Cranberry sauces have endless uses. They are delicious hot or cold, any time of day. For breakfast, try warm cranberry sauce over pancakes, or waffles. For lunch or dinner, this sauce is a scrumptious partner with meat, either as a side garnish or sauce, or as a basting sauce for that turkey or ham. At dessert time, cranberry sauce easily adds sparkle to ice cream, pudding, or a piece of creamy cheese cake.

Now is definitely the time for buying cranberries. They are available in varying supply and form throughout the year, but more are available in the stores during November than any other month of the year. December also brings a fair amount of the berries.

Select berries that are firm, plump and fresh with a high luster. The cranberries will differ in size, shape and color, according to variety, but each has a delicious flavor. Fresh berries are also bouncing berries. High quality cranberries will bounce several times when dropped. You're likely to already know that fact - if you've ever spilled a pan full! Avoid berries that are dull in appearance, shriveled, and/or soft.

Refrigerate cranberries in their original package until needed. Wash, drain, and sort the berries when you are ready to use them. Cranberries usually keep well in the refrigerator for 2-4 weeks. If you plan to keep them longer, pop them in the freezer.

Cranberries are one of the easiest foods to freeze. Place the original bag inside a freezer bag and store them in your freezer. When you are ready to use them, there's no need for thawing. The berries will separate easily.

REAL VIEWS ON REAL ESTATE

SELLING WITHOUT BROKER

QUESTION: I will be retiring soon and plan on selling our home and moving to another city. Since I have some time before I have to sell, I am seriously considering trying to sell my house myself. Do you think this is a good idea? T. P. Greenville

ANSWER: Dear T.P., When faced with the prospects of having to pay a five, six or seven percent sales commission, some homebuyers, like yourself, find it very tempting to sell their own home and thus save the sales commission. Before you decide to go it alone, here are some points to consider.

Do you know your property's value on today's market? You must know the value in order to price the property. You certainly do not want to price it at a figure substantially below market value.

Can you show comparable houses to a prospective buyer? One of the means by which a broker will sell your house is by showing how its features are superior to those of other houses. If you sell it yourself, you will not have these comparables.

Are you familiar with real estate sales techniques? Do you know how to show a house?

Are you familiar with today's complex financing arrangements? Could you explain owner-financing or a wraparound mortgage?

Finally, do you have time to handle all these matters?

If you cannot answer "yes" to these questions, perhaps you should enlist the aid of a real estate broker. Some brokers will agree to give limited assistance if you want to handle certain parts of the sale yourself, but professional help usually saves over the chance of your home selling for the least trouble and most profit.

For answers to your questions, write Dr. Dennis Toth,

P. O. Box 295, University, Miss. 38677.

WILDER TRIBUTE

Composer, Alec Wilder is profiled in a special program, "A Tribute to Alec Wilder," at 10 p.m., Monday, Nov. 22, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

Photographs of Wilder, who died in 1980, performances of his works by jazz pianist and program host Marian McPartland and performances dedicated to his memory give a revealing glimpse of the man and his art.

Wilder's songs were in demand by many of the great singers, and he wrote special material for Frank Sinatra, Tony Bennett, Mabel Mercer and Peggy Lee. He was also a prolific writer for friends, and his songs were played on radio and because he was a great storyteller.

Dix photography exhibit opens in Hancock Plaza

Paul Dix of Ocean Springs, an internationally acclaimed photographer, will exhibit his photographs from Nov. 18 through Dec. 7 on the second floor of One Hancock Plaza in Gulfport. The exhibit will be open for viewing during regular banking hours.

Dix's works have appeared in Time/Life Books, Harper & Row Textbooks, Penguin Books, Additions-Berlitz, Aldus Books and Field Enterprises Textbooks.

They have also appeared in such magazines as Time, Esquire, Atlantic Monthly, Telegraph Magazine, EDC Publications and Reader's Digest.

His unusual photography of worldwide scenes has won him commissions with trade publications, such as Air France, Union Carbide, Schering, Mississippi Chemical Corp. and others.

He has ad credits in such newspapers as the New York Times and the London Illustrated News. Altogether, he has more than 2,400 published photographs.

Dix has done free-lance work photographing politicians in Ecuador, covering the drug trade in Tangiers, a military coup in Peru, a documentary of volcanoes in Guatemala, bull fights in Latin America, bald eagles in Glacier National Park, offshore sulfur mining in Louisiana, the 1961 Mt. McKinley Expedition, and carnival in Rio de Janeiro.

The exhibit is open to the public weekdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., and 2:30 to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 3 to 5:30 p.m. on Friday.

Freddie March and Carole Lombard star in the 1937 movie "Nothing Sacred," to be presented on "Film Classics" at 8:30 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 25, on the Mississippi-ETV Network. Directed by William Wellman and written by Ben Hecht, "Nothing Sacred" tells the story of a young woman from Vermont who has been given only six weeks to live. She is carefully nurtured into a headline item by a New York newspaper reporter who is intrigued with her plight.

ACREAGE EFFECTS

The effects of government acreage reduction programs for wheat, cotton and feed grains will decrease the supply and increase the price of these products. But at the same time, consultants who are paid on a per-acre basis for their services, like some entomologists and agricultural pilots, will be financially hurt by the program.

"Farmweek," the weekly program for Mississippi farmers, will look at the effects of these acreage reduction programs at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Nov. 29, on Mississippi-ETV. The program will also include farm and market reports, weather forecasts for the upcoming week, production tips and notification for upcoming agricultural events. The weekly series is co-produced by the Mississippi Center for Educational Television and the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

BLACK EMPLOYMENT

"Faces" features a discussion on "Why Blacks Refuse Certain Types of Jobs" at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 1, on the Mississippi ETV Network. Guests are Beverly Hogan, executive director of the Mississippi Mental Health Association; Sam Neal, coordinator of services for special applicant groups, Mississippi State Employment Service; Ruth Wilson, director of the
